I hope you enjoyed the bird spotting challenge over the half term. Did you spot lots of different birds when you were out and about?

Can you remember the blue tit video I posted on Tapestry before half term? I told you I would try to video the baby birds as they fledged. Have a look at Tapestry and you will see a new video showing one of the baby blue tits the day before it fledged poking its head out of the box and having a good look around.

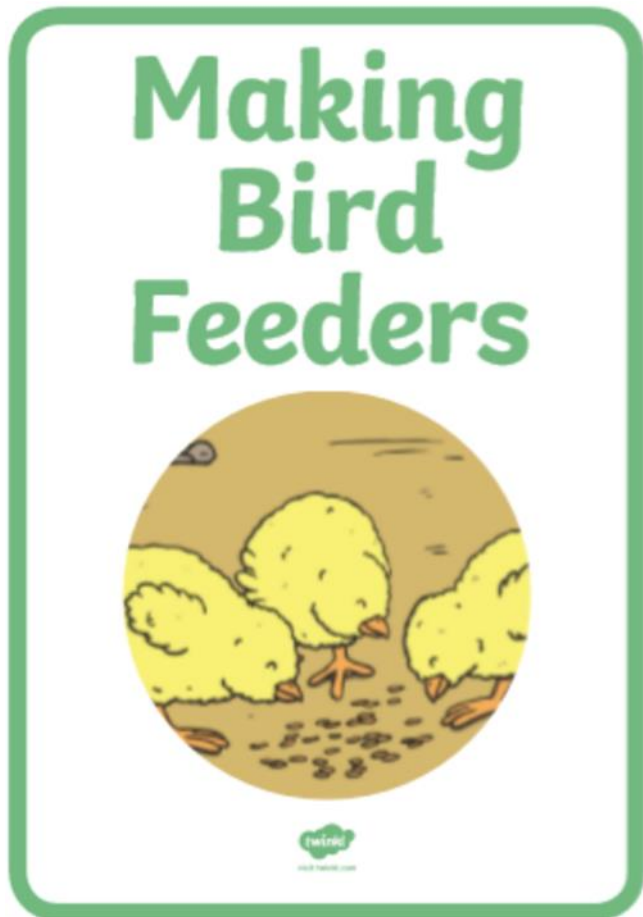

I like to put bird food out to encourage the birds to my garden. For today's activity I have included some simple bird feeder ideas so you can make your very own bird feeder or you can get creative and make your own!

Happy making!

Kitchen Roll Bird Feeder

Turn leftover kitchen roll tubes into simple bird feeders to hang in your garden. A great activity that even the youngest child can join in with.

You will need:

Cardboard tubes

Peanut butter (see below for alternatives)

Blunt knife or lolly stick

Bird seed

Garden string

Instructions:

1. Use a blunt knife or lolly stick to spread peanut butter all over the outside of the cardboard tube.
2. Spread your birdseed in a thin layer on a plate or baking tray.
3. Carefully roll the tube in the seed so that the outside becomes coated in seeds.
4. Measure a length of string  $\frac{3}{4}$  times the length of the tube. Thread it through the tube and tie firmly.
5. Hang the tube from your bird feeder or a tree or bush in your garden.

Hints and Tips

- You can use a different nut butter, or soy butter, if you don't want to use peanut butter. You could also use lard.
- Try different combinations of bird seed, nuts and mealworms. See whether different birds are attracted to different foods.
- Make sure you hang your feeders out of the reach of cats and dogs.
